Author Adrienne Adams releases Breakthrough, a tale unlike any other that chronicles a Chicago teen’s journey of faith

Chicago, IL---Breakthrough, the long-awaited novel by first-time author, Adrienne Adams, is captivating readers from Chicago to Kenya as they get to know the book’s hero, Vic Rogers.

The harsh reality for some teens in inner-city Chicago is dominated by issues of violence and drugs, in addition to mounting social and academic pressures. In Breakthrough, the author captures the same real anxieties teens may face today through Vic, a seventeen-year-old with an alcoholic father and a reading disability that discourages him from school and propels him into a life of desperation and uncertainty.

“I think it’s important that we get this book into the hands of the people...schools, churches, organizations... whoever might be inspired by it,” Adams said.

The book has even made it’s way to Kenya where Pastor William Onyango of Living Rock Church has praised the work’s words of inspiration and truth.

“This book helps us to know and understand the love of God,” Pastor Onyango said. “I believe from reading this book...you will never be the same again.”

Discover how Vic finds his way to the right path in this brilliantly scripted story for teens and adults alike. Breakthrough is the pilot project of the author’s faith-based publication company, Write the Vision Ministries, LLC. Copies can be ordered through the Web site at www.wtvmin.com.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Adrienne Adams grew up on the south side of Chicago. After becoming a parent as a teenager, she worked hard to take care of her children while still making education a top priority and believes that others can learn from her experiences. Adrienne started her publishing company, Write the Vision Ministries, LLC, with the idea that young people should be secure in the knowledge that they can come to Christ just as they are. Adrienne holds a Bachelor of Liberal Arts and Sciences in English from the University of Illinois at Chicago. She resides with her husband, Andre, and their five children in Chicago.
